April 16, 1974

Mr. Foy McDavid, Jr. Box 8227, UT Station Knoxville, Tennessee 37916

Dear Foy:

Thank you for your April 5 letter. We appreciate your taking time to share with us your thoughts and concerns about the Gay People's Alliance. As you may know, this group has appealed the University's administrative denial of recognition to our Board of Trustees. A special committee of the Board recently held a full-day hearing on the matter and is expected to make recommendations to the full Board at its annual meeting in June. You may be assured that the Board will give full attention to this matter.

Again, thank you for writing.

Sincerely yours,

Edward J. Boling President

EJB:sf

bcc: Dr. Joseph E. Johnson Dr. Jack E. Reese

Wattashed

Dr. Boling:

+ a moverlyden charlie - act April APR 1 1 1974 Attached please find a Mar. 25 Newsweek article with appropriate brackets concerning the legal and university funding jeopardy that official recognition of homosexual organizations has entailed on other campuses. Since the issue could come before the UT Trustees at any time, I hope you will address to them the issues involved.

On other matters: Like you, I breathe a sigh of relief that the Governor has vetoed the bill that would punish UT for having coed dormitories and feel that the Legislature missed the legitimate academic concerns of the University, such as full funding and immediate work on a new Art and Architecture building and fostering a generally healthy academic and free choice living environment for students to study in. Which brings me to the issue of the warped mind threat to this that is at hand - the "Gay People's Alliance" bid for University recognition. I believe these are the salient facts the Trustees should consider and I would appreciate your comments to them in this regard:

(1) The gay group already has de-facto recognition due to the Daily Beacon's support of them circa Feb. 20 editorial and following features; the "Mother Jones Gazette," a lesbian branch of the Gay Alliance, has been distributed in the past in the Student Senate office and on Beacon newsstands, similar to the activities of their forerunner the Gay Liberation Front in 1971; and red-colored stencil fists and circles saying "Dykes Unite" have been painted at such places as the back door of the Undergraduate Library and the Stadium Drive entrance to the Student Post Office on the sidewalks of the aforementioned. So the homosexuals are hardly "repressed" as they claim.

(2) Tennessee law says it is a felony for anyone to solicit for homosexual acts; indeed the Gay Alliance is organized by people who not only seem proud of their deviation but want to blanket the campus with their ideas which, no matter how they rationalize it, has as its purpose to organize people who have committed a felony and are bent on continuing it. If University recognition, is given to these mixed-up lawbreakers, then let's also give it to any other group that, say, organizes to rob banks, rape, and the bomb threat callers because if the sick homosexuals believe UI should let them use the activity fee (for speakers, "dances," etc.), then by the same "tolerant" premise, groups could invite Richard Speck, James Earl Ray, and Sirhan Sirhan because I'm sure they've got some "repressed" crackpot ideas they want to get across too. In short, to grant recognition to this outlaw Gay Alliance would land our campus in a world of thorny legal and moral problems, and with UT's struggle for more funding and even better academic programs, I simply don't believe any of us needs the kind of future hassle that granting the Gay Alliance official status would bring. Sincerelv, Foy McDavid, Box 8227, UT Sta.

Foy McDavid, Jr. Box 8227, UT Sta.

April 5, 1974

Dr. Boling:

APR 11 1974

Attached please find a Mar. 25 Newsweek article with appropriate brackets concerning the legal and university funding jeopardy that official recognition of homosexual organizations has entrailed on other campuses. Since the issue could come before the UT Trustees at any time, I hope you will address to them the issues involved.

On other matters: Like you, I breathe a sigh of relief that the Governor has vetoed the bill that would punish UT for having coed dormitories and feel that the Legislature missed the legitimate academic concerns of the University, such as full funding and immediate work on a new Art and Architecture building and fostering a generally healthy academic and free choice living environment for students to study in. Which brings me to the issue of the warped mind threat to this that is at hand - the "Gay People's Alliance" bid for University recognition. I believe these are the salient facts the Trustees should consider and I would appreciate your comments to them in this regard:

(1) The gay group already has de-facto recognition due to the Daily Beacon's support of them circa Feb. 20 editorial and following features; the "Mother Jones Gazette," a lesbian branch of the Gay Alliance, has been distributed in the past in the Student Senate office and on Beacon newsstands, similar to the activities of their forerunner the Gay Liberation Front in 1971; and red-colored stencil fists and circles saying "Dykes Unite" have been painted at such places as the back door of the Undergraduate Library and the Stadium Drive entrance to the Student Post Office on the sidewalks of the aforementioned. So the homosexuals are hardly "repressed" as they claim,

(2) Tennessee law says it is a felony for anyone to solicit for homosexual acts; indeed the Gay Alliance is organized by people who not only seem proud of their deviation but want to blanket the campus with their ideas which, no matter how they rationalize it, has as its purpose to organize people who have committed a felony and are bent on continuing it. If University recognition is given to these mixed-up lawbreakers, then let's also give it to any other group that, say, organizes to rob banks, rape, and the bomb threat callers because if the sick homosexuals believe UT should let them use the activity fee (for speakers, "dances," etc.), then by the same "tolerant" premise, groups could invite Richard Speck, James Earl Ray, and Sirhan Sirhan because I'm sure they've got some "repressed" crackpot ideas they want to get across too. In short, to grant recognition to this outlaw Gay Alliance would land our campus in a world of thorny legal and moral problems, and with UT's struggle for more funding and even better academic programs, I simply don't believe any of us needs the kind of future hassle that granting the Gay Alliance official status would bring. Sincerely, Fey, McDavid, Box 8227, UT Sta.

Dr. Beling:

yeu will address to them the issues invalved. Since the lesue could come before the UT Trustees at any time. I hope recognition of hemospanal creations had entryied on other compuses. brackets concerning the legal and university funding jespardy that affectal Attached please find a Mar. 25 Newsweek article with appropriate 1 9 0 m 6 (White Priz Might on Muchand Com APROLEMEN

- Annual auto

+ Krimylar

Lezalde Trustens should consider and I would appreciate your chamants to them in this bid for University recognition. I believe these are the salient facts the the warped mind threat to this that is at hand - the "Gay People's Alliance" living environment for students to study in. Which brings are to faste at ure building and featering a generally healthy academic and free chaice University, such as full funding and immediate work on a new Art and Architeefand feel that the Legislature missed the legitimate Scademic concerns of the Covernor has versed the bill that would punish UT for having coed dormiterisa On other matters: Like you, I breathe a sigh of ralief that the of the storementionan. So the homosexuals are hardly "repressed" as they claim, and the Stadium Drive entrance to the Student Post Office on the Bidewalks been painted at such places as the back door of the Undergraduate bibrary 1971; and red-colered stencil fists and circles saying "Dykes Unite" have similar to the activitios of their forerunner the Gay Liberation Front in distributed in the past in the Student Senate office and on Rescon newsstands, the "Mother Junes Gauette," a lesbian branch of the Gay Alliance, has been Bercon's support of them circa Feb. 20 editorial and following features: (1) The gay group already has do-facts recognition due to the Daily needs the kind of future bassle that granting the Cay Alliance official status would bring. Sincerely, How Mermaric, Bex 8227, UP Sea. funding and even better academic programe, I simply don't believe any of us in a world of thorny level and moral problems, and with Of's struggle for more shart, to grant racegnitian to this outlaw Gry Alliance would land our campus they've got some "repressed" crackput iness they want to get across too. In could invite Richard Speck, James Barl Ray, and Sirhan Sirhan because I'm surd fee (for speakere, "dances," etc.), then by the same "telerant" premiss, groups because if the sick homosexuals believe UP should let them use the sotivity group that, sur, arganises to rob banks, range, and the beab threat cullers le given to these miged-up lawbrackers, then let's also give it to may scher have conmitted a feleny and are bent on continuing it. If University receptives no metter how they rationalize it, has as its purpose to ergenize people who prend of their deviation but want to blanket the campus with their ideas weich, sexual actas indeed the day Alliance is erganized by peeple whe not only seve (2) Tennessee law says it is a foleny for anyone to solicit for heme-

The Boys in the Band

When 22-year-old a homosexual named Wayne April founded the Gay Students' Organization at the University of New Hampshire last spring, he touched off some predictable pyrotechnics-both on the campus and off. Many trustees were shocked, and New Hamp-shire Gov. Meldrim Thomson Jr. de-nounced the idea out of hand. Nevertheless, the 25-member GSO was duly recognized as a campus organization, and there the matter rested until summer vacation was over. But last fall, the homosexuals scheduled a dance on campus. This goaded the governor into fury and the trustees into drastic action. They banned all GSO social activities and said they would go to court to outlaw the organization.

Larry Forma

Then when the furor over the dance had died down, the gay students arranged for a campus performance of a play produced by Boston homosexual groups. The university administration decided that the play could go on as scheduled, but when the trustees learned that homosexual spectators had reportedly held hands and kissed during the performance-and that activist literature on how to convert normal males to homosexuality had been distributed-the uproar broke out anew.

Campaign: Scores of conservative clergymen deluged Governor Thomson's office with letters of outraged protest. In Manchester, flag-waving Union Leader publisher William Loeb launched a virulent front-page campaign against the gay students. And when a Federal court ruled, in response to a Civil Liberties Union protest, that the university must grant the GSO all the rights of other campus organizations, Loeb urged the trustees to fight the gay students all the way to the Supreme Court. To support his position, Loeb published an editorial on a District of Columbia court decision banning a homosexual club there as a "bawdy and disorderly house."

108

Meanwhile, the controversy spread to neighboring Maine. Encouraged by the example of the New Hampshire homosexuals, a gay-activist group called the Wilde-Stein Club requested and received recognition at the University of Maine. Conservative groups attacked both the homosexuals and the university in the press. And when college officials refused to deny the club permission to hold a state-wide homosexual conference next month, right-wing legislators threatened to deny funds for the university's $173 million budget if the gay club was not banned.

Two weeks ago, after a two-hour debate, the Maine House of Representatives approved the budget in spite of the anti-homosexual outcry. But the issue is far from dead. Already, university officials report, alumni and other benefactors are threatening to cut off their contributions. In New Hampshire, the trustees are awaiting the next step in their appeal. Student leaders there, fearing that further controversy will threaten the existence of their school, have voted to deny student-activity money to the gay organization on the ground that they should not fund groups that "represent a viewpoint." And, to prove that they were being fair, they cut off funds for the Black Student Union, a women's center and a Jewish organization as well.

New Hampshire gay activist at lectern (left), publisher Loeb and editorial

The Humbug Patrol

In the past, most English teachers have been timid to the point of downright cowardice when it came to protecting the language from the onslaught of noxious neologisms, jargon, cant and the inane vogue words and phrases that regularly assault it. This was a task left to such scathing critics as Benjamin Franklin, who compiled a list of 228 eighteenth-century euphemisms for the word drunk; Ambrose Bierce, whose Devil's Dictionary contributed such marvelous definitions as "PATIENCE: n. A minor form of despair disguised as a virtue"; and above all Henry L. Mencken, who regularly castigated the peculiarly American penchant for trying to disguise commonplace tasks with high-flown euphemisms, e.g., the attempt to turn barbers into "tonsorial artists," undertakers into "morticians" and garbagemen into "sanitary engineers."

But now the teachers seem finally to have mustered their courage and decided to man the ramparts themselves. In Urbana, Ill., the National Council of Teachers of English has organized a 29member watchdog committee called the Committee on Public Doublespeak (from the terms Newspeak and Doublethink coined by George Orwell in his book "1984"). The committee plans to distribute books, pamphlets and curriculum

Court Rules Against Sodomites

Now that the prestigious United States Court of Annesh of the District of Columbia has at the University of New Hampshire. The trustees should now realize that they must continue to appeal Judge Bownes' rulings, if necessary all the way to the Supreme Court of the United States, in order to determine once and for all whether this nation is to be a nation run for the benefit of sodomites and prostitutes, or whether it is to remain a nation for decent people who at least attempt to adhere to reasonable moral standards.

William Loeb, Publisher

guides that it hopes will help the teachers fend off incursions of the vulgar. They will focus particularly on the techniques of obfuscation, distortion and evasion used by politicians and ad men. "We want 5-year-olds to understand how much sheer blah and humbug there is to most television commercials," says committee chairman Daniel Dieterich. "We'd like to have voters know what's really happening when a politician addresses them."

To underscore this point, the teachers' committee is considering an annual "Orwellian Award" to the public figure who provides the most atrocious example of Doublespeak, and already it seems clear that some Pentagon official may well be the first winner-provided the committee can find out who coined "combat emplacement evacuator" as the official term for a shovel, or "civilian irregular defense soldier" for a mercenary. Appropriately enough, the teachers will also keep a sharp eve out for miscreants within their own ranks. There are several obvious candidates here: the teachers who first called desks "pupil stations"; who decid-ed that telling a child he has made a mistake should be called "corrective feedback," and who rechristened libraries "learning resource centers," Mar, 25, 1914

Newsweek, April 1 1974